One great force drives people and enterprises: the will to succeed. We at Williams Lea – a subsidiary of Deutsche Post DHL – actively shape this success. With our approximately 9,000 employees around the world and turnover of € 1.3 billion, we implement and operate solutions for the information and communications management of large-scale international enterprises. To do so, we tackle the cross-media implementation of our clients' marketing communications, ranging from consulting to creation and procurement and all the way to distribution. Also, with our presentation services and project support, we provide them with assistance throughout their value-added chain. Join us and contribute your expertise, your skills and your knowledge.

As part of its continuing growth in providing leading marketing solutions and presentation services to our clients in Germany, Williams Lea seeks at our location in Bonn, Germany an ambitious and entrepreneurial

Financial Controller (m/f)

You will be the Finance business partner of colleagues from all areas of the business. Responsible for financial planning and commercial analysis, you will play a key role in driving the performance of our Client Service operations. You will also ensure that robust financial controls are in place. Your tasks will include managing budgeting and forecasting, including reviewing assumptions and challenging the Client Services teams. You will provide commercial analysis to support new business, contract renewal, and business development, communicating outcomes to senior stakeholders. Additionally, you will oversee monthly reporting, manage deadlines and provide variance analysis, commentary, and recommendations. You will also be in charge of producing and managing client account balance sheets, ensuring that potential risks are assessed and managed. Your duties will extend to tasks such as resolving ad-hoc queries from operational management that arise in a division, managing if necessary relationships among specific Finance SME's, such as Tax or Financial Accounting.

You have a university degree in economics or business and more than five years of practical experience. You are organized and tenacious, imbued with an enthusiasm to support the business. Highly numerate, you possess strong analytical skills and attention to detail. You are skilled at influencing peers, colleagues, and clients. You work well under pressure to meet multiple deadlines, and you build productive working relationships across various business functions. You boast a proven record of managing successful teams. Your ambition is reflected in your eagerness to assume extra responsibilities as you look for chances for personal progress. Furthermore you command respect in your ability to work well with peers, colleagues, and clients. You convey commercial information clearly and concisely both to the business and clients. You are bilingual in English and German; a strong command of another European language, especially French, would be beneficial. An excellent knowledge of Excel is crucial.
